connection and use the horses for therapy.

The calming nature of horses and the decreased heart rate effects the kids that are with them. As soon as they get close, their heart rate starts to mimic the horses to relieve anxiety. She also shared a story of one child with down syndrome that wasn't walking. After a few sessions with the horses, she was running (like the horse).

A fantastic center.

They are looking for volunteers. If you're interested, please contact them thru their website for more information.

Bingo Update:

A Beautiful Bingo!

We were off a little on our numbers due to graduations, end of school events and travelers but all in all, still a good bingo.

We had 64 players
netting around $1100
with bar tips (yes - it felt good to be back at the UPCC).

eat some yummy food
and have a drink (or 2)

Keep pushing your friends,
family and co-workers to join
all the fun!
