Key Club & LEDCON, Jacob Liu

Key Club led Lt. Gov. Jacob Liu to expand his leadership skills, helped him meet interesting people, and taught him the purpose of service, he told our club on Oct. 28.

Jacob said he joined the Denton High Key Club in 10th grade to get community service hours for his college applications, but the club has been "far more than that."

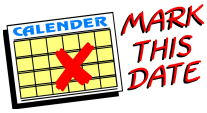

One of the highlights of the Key Club year is LEDCON, the district convention in April at Wichita Falls. At this convention, seniors can apply for scholarships, and Key Club members meet Key Clubbers from across Texas and Oklahoma.

"I'm pretty sure you'll get something out of it," Jacob said.

Kiwanis started Key Clubs in 1925, so Jacob joked that they pretty much are forced to like us. Both clubs share the same mission, and Key Clubs are the future of Kiwanis.

Jacob asked for anyone in the audience to talk about an experience with Key Club. Joe Holland said his father was in Kiwanis, so Holland went to a variety show that Kiwanis would put on when he was 12, and the Key Club, all boys at that time, sang at the show. Holland said he told his father that he wanted to be in that group, and when he was at DHS, he was in the Key Club.

Listing accomplishments this year, Jacob said his district has had 30-plus service opportunities across the district so far, they have had record attendance at almost every club in the division, and the district has initiated UNICEF fundraising across the division.

His goals are to increase clubs in the district by 25 percent, have 100-plus service projects for the year, have 2,500 cumulative service hours, have at least 20 people attend LEDCON, have one club in the top 25, have five senior scholarship award winners, and have two members on the district board.

Kiwanis members can be involved in Key Club by going to Key Club meetings, attending service projects, telling people to join, mentoring a member, and attending LEDCON.

"Key Club changes our lives," Jacob said.
